

ISAT Science Vocabulary

The vocabulary list that follows is provided for classroom teachers to serve as a guide for the language used in science instruction. The intent is to produce a common vocabulary between the descriptive terms used in introducing core science concepts to students in classrooms in Idaho, and the terms that will be used to assess student understanding of the important science concepts covered by the Science Idaho Standards Achievement Test. Essentially, we want to foster a common language between the instruction and assessment of science, so that a student's performance on the Science ISAT will not be negatively impacted by semantics.

The terms included in this list are to be integrated into the language of instruction of classroom teachers as they guide their students through a rich and active science program. This list is not a list of words for students to memorize, and it is not a comprehensive list of the terms encountered in the science classroom. Rather, it is an aid to help ensure that the language of instruction and the language of assessment are similar.

This list has been broken down by the RIT range of items in which each word first appears. Please note that the standards eligible to be assessed in the Science ISAT are limited to a subset of standards identified as "Power Standards" and "Content Mini-Power Standards." Therefore, this list does not contain vocabulary related to every Idaho Science Standard.
